BEOMETON PROBENTION PROPER.

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1836.

The admission of Arkansas and Michigan is a troublesome pill to the Whigs-it kept them up all night in the House of Representatives on Thursday week, and then they were no better in the morning.

"The previous question (says the Globe) could not be called to stop debate, as it was in the Committee of the Whole, and Mr Wise proclaimed in the House that he had it in his power, and he was resolved to speak until the special order of the succeeding day should come up-the effect of which he supposed would be to cut off final action on the Arkansas bill. He kept his word, and like his friend Graves, who spoke the North Carolina question into Sunday, he held out to the hour, which he supposed would compel the committee to rise and leave the question of Arknosas undisposed of. He spoke many hours against time, to reach the goal he had in view-the hour when the Speaker usually, under the rules, takes the chair to open the business of the day. When Mr Wise reached this hour, he called for the Speaker; the Speaker rose in his place in the Hall, pointed to the first rule of the House, which says-"He shall take the chair every day precisely at the hour to which the House shall have adjourned on the preceding day,"-and said that as the House had not adjourned on the preceding day to the usual hour, but had held a continuous session, he could not, against the expressed will of the body which, in Committee of the Whole, had refused to rise, take the chair and put an end to the functions

THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL.

Brigade Band, escorted the Independent Cadets, under Col. Fessenden, to Governor Everett's house in Charlestown, where they partook of a collation.

After resting some time at His Excellency's, the Cadets repaired to the Rev. Dr. Fay's meeting house, and, in the Young Men to take upon themselves the task of comconjunction with Light Infantry and Guards, took up the escort of a long procession formed there. The procession having halted at His Excellency's house, he joined it, with his aids, Colonels R. C. Winthrop, Andrews, and M'-Farland, and it then proceeded, through the principal streets, to the Rev. Dr. Walker's meeting house, to hear lery, under Capt. Christy, fired a salute from Bunker Hill, when an Oration by the HON. ALEXANDER H. EVERETT. Its progress was somewhat accelerated by a shower, which commenced a few minutes before it reached its destination. The objects of chief interest in the procession were three or four barouches containing thirteen surviving veterans of tleman, by copying into Monday's Post a paragraph charged his pistol, by accident, before the word, and the Revolution, ten of whom fought at the memorable battle whose anniversary they had assembled to celebrate. Commodore Downes and President Quincy were also among the guests. Every pew in the house was crowded, as well as the aisles, with a most respectable assemblage; and a dazzling display of female beauty shone from the galleries upon the dense mass below.

Prior to the delivery of the oration a patriotic prayer was offered up by Dr. Walker, and an anthem and an ode were sung by a powerful choir, led by Mr Bartlett.

About half past one, Mr Everett commenced his ora which he delivered without resorting to his notes. a few general observations, and advancing some principles of political philosophy, and remarking nearly all great improvements for the benefit of manking were obtained through bloodshed, he proceeded to the events of the day, which his hearers had assembled to commemorate. In this part of his oration, he was extremely happy in relating a series of thrilling incidents and anecdotes of the wisdom, valor, intrepidity, and sometimes rashness, as well as modesty, feeling and honor, of the leading officers who fought at Bunker Hill. He interspersed his parrative of the battle with brief, but lively and interesting biographical sketches and personal descriptions of General Ward, Putnam, Prescott, Warren, Stark, Reid, Pierce, Brooks, Eustis, Pomeroy, Gridley, and Benjamin Thompson, the late Count Rumford, and a host of other worthies. General Pierce, of New Hampshire, had the happiness to be present to hear the eulogium on himself and the comrades of his youthful valor and dangers, and to enjoy the plaudits which each successive instance of daring and patriotism pourtrayed by the orator received from the deeply-moved audience,

We had noted many of the spirited anecdotes related by Mr Everett, but the lateness of the hour at which the proceedings closed, will not admit of our doing justice to them in this morning's paper; we regret this the less, however, as the Oration will undoubtedly be soon issued entire in a pamphlet form. His description of the battle was exceedingly minute, graphic, and faithful to the ancient chronicles, and was preceded by a plain and accurate statement of the forces and positions of the Provincial and British armies. Col, Prescott and General Warren were the most prominent subjects of his sketches, and the mode of their deaths was dwelt upon at length. In this connexion, Mr Everett exhibited the identical musket ball, which killed Warren, wrapped up in a piece of paper, stained with his blood. It was taken from the dead body the morning after the battle, by Mr Savage, a high officer in the Boston Custom House at that day.

At the conclusion, Mr Everett addressed himself specifically to the thirteen veterans, who were present, and the audience spontaneously rose, to catch a glimpse of the venerable heroes, at this interesting moment. As Mr Everett, in behalf of the assembly, and the present generation, acknowledged, in eloquent and touching language, the debt of gratitude felt towards them, they appeared deeply affected. Some held down their heads ; others placed their hands over their eyes; others buried their faces in their handkerchiefs, and one tall, yet bended figure wiped off a tear that was coursing down his ancient and timefurrowed cheek, with the rim of his plain straw hat. Mr. Everett occupied about two hours and a quarter in the delivery of his Oration, and commanded throughout the most intense attention, which was only exchanged for full and reiterated applause, when he resumed his seat.

At the close of the services in the meeting house, the procession re-formed, and proceeded to the Town Hall, where a plentiful dinner was provided. At the head of the hall, but intervening between the recess, where the Brig ade Band was stationed, and the President of the Day, a finished model of Bunker Hill Monument was raised. The ceremony of dinner being soon performed by the guests, whose appetites were somewhat sharpened by the lateness of the hour-four o'clock-the tables were well supplied with wines, and the President of the Day, BENJAMIN THOMPSON, Esq. addressed the meeting upon the character of the occasion, and stated that the toastmaster would announce the regular toasts, among which were the following: 1. The Day—the 17th of June, 1806—the Anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Bill, on the 17th of June, 1775—Let the watchwords of party be forgotten, and let us only remember that we are all Americans.

2. The Memory of those who died on Bunker Hill-Their memory is their monument; the history that records their deeds and sacrifices, their epitaph.

Governer Everett arose to respond to the compliment tendered him, and read a number of original letters, recently discovered by overhauling some obscure apartment in the State House. They were dated a few days before, and on the very day, and day subsequent to the battle of Bunker Hill. They related to matters connected with the battle, such as calling for men, horses, powder, entrenching tools, &c. With regard to one written by Gen, Putnam, His Excellency said he was at a loss to decide whether the General had signed his name with a quill, or the point of his cutlass, or a pick-axe, though he was most inclined to think he had signed it with the latter. NIVE DOLLARS REWARD!!-Lost, a black and white log, of middling size—about half his tail and the tips of both cars have been cut off—the latter appearing a very little swollen, as if recently done. Whoever will re turn him to me shall receive the above reward, or five dol-lars and one cent for the dog and "puppy who abducted him. The said dog answers to the name of Trum, and was carried away yesterday by some of the numerous persons who came on shore from the 15 sail of vessels bound eastward, to view the ruins of the late conflagration which destroyed nearly all my property, and have added to that calamity the loss of my old, fallful, harmless, though to credulous dog—which can be found probably on board of some of said vessels or about the wharves.

N. B. Any passenger, or other person, having any knowledge of said dog, will conter a favor by stating it by mail.

4 TH EDITION OF SHIP WRECKS AND DISASTERS AT SEA.—The fourth edition of this popular work has just issued from the press of S. N. DICKINSON, far work has just issued from the press of S. N. Dickinson, 52 Washington street, where it may be had in large or small quantities. This volume of 432 pages, royal 12mo, contains 100 spirited engravings, 30 to 40 of which are large, and at once convey to the mind the perils and dangers of the wave-tossed mariner while on the reging sea, or the more fearful picture of speedy destruction as his gallant vessel drives furiously upon some rock bound coast amid horrid cliffs and yawning caverns. The work has received many favorable notices from the editorial fraternity, and is considered as snrpassing any work of the kind ever before got up in this country, or in Europe. Independent of the merits of the work itself, the price, no doubt, has contributed greatly to its success, for the publisher can assert, without fear of contradiction, that it is the cheapest book ever published. Dealers in town and country are invited to call on the publisher, as they will be supplied on the most liberal terms.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pain.

stant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pain-over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to over almost the whole system—the food that I are seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain as tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetably Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the least feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the general of a few hours completely restores me. It has had with course of a few hours completely restores me. It has had with me a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, to be a very valuable medicine.
